Question	Answer
How effective has been your member and student recruitment initiatives and how effective has the Council been in promoting the Institute?	The principle member and student recruitment initiatives are undertaken within the nine Divisions of the Institute. The international Council has been active in supporting the efforts of the Divisions by, for example, reviewing pathways to membership and promotion through digital campaigns.
You appointed 'an experienced Policy Adviser'. Can you provide details please? Background, past directorships, recruitment process etc.	The recruitment process involved an international advertising period, an agreed position description, rigorous interview process and finally a Council appointment. The Policy Adviser has a strong background in the private and public sectors as well as being an Ambassador for her country. The successful candidate is a member of the Institute.
Can you provide a link to the webinars with the ICSI please?	https://www.cgiglobal.org/news-events/webinars/
How have you protected the integrity of the examination process? What has been the pass rate across diverse groups? And how have these groups been protected against potential bias?	The global Institute as well as each Division has an academic governance structure in place to guarantee academic and procedural fairness. There are pre and post reviews of the examination process across Divisions to protect against potential bias.
How many members of the TLC been directly involved in increasing memberships substantially in their previous organisations?	Members of the Thought Leadership Committee are appointed for their technical knowledge and are not necessarily involved in member recruitment. They give substantial time to formulating the Institute's thought leadership positions.
How effective is the e-community in increasing student and membership numbers?	The eCommunity has grown from year to year and continues to expand the global footprint of the Institute. There is no doubt that it contributes to student and member growth.
